"While nearly all metropolitan Australians live in the suburbs and 85% of all jobs are in the suburbs these areas are poorly served by transport other infrastructure. The role of the Suburban Alliance in forcing a more accurate and fairer perspective on the ways that our cities should grow is increasingly important to all Australians."

"The Suburban Alliance is a go-to source for up-to-date news and information about global suburban trends, and one of the few unbiased resources for learning about the suburban market and suburban land use trends in general. Urban planning and transportation policy makers should take note and radically rethink outdated models that are failing for their citizens."
